Question Part

1	WKS 4 Dear Cousen, I hope this letter finds you in good health. I was talking to a aunt Emma the other day, and she shared that you were considering to go travelling during the long summer break. I feel it is a great idea ^{that} and will allow you to relax and recharge, before joining a university. Multiple friends of mine, who opted to travel during ^{the} summer break, often recall the memories they made along the way. Travelling broadened their horizon in ways unimaginable. They met people of different cultures and religions, (They learnt about) ^x and had got the chance to experience, and learn about their customs. This educated them about the diversity the world had to offer. Furthermore, they learnt vital life skills. Without the presence of anyone they could possibly rely on, taught them self reliability. They learnt to solve problems and overcome challenges. The best part about travelling was is the experience. You experience new things, new places and make memories that will last you a lifetime. Although travelling can be (considered a bit) expensive, and the hoteling, airplane fares, and food can cost a kidney, it provides you with experiences that can not be bought. To add on, travelling can become affordable if one forgets about the luxury experiences. The summer vacation before university should be spent learning valuable life skills, and travelling provides you with the skills that can not be taught in a classroom or an office. I believe, you should go travelling in the summer break as it will be a life changing experience for you; but instead of spending

While cleaning the attic, I found something carefully tucked behind the dusty, decaying cardboard boxes. I grabbed the package and carefully examined it. But a strange feeling passed through my body as I decided to open the package. I was greeted so by a rusty dagger with crimson spots all over it. My heart raced thinking about all the possible explanations behind the crimson spots. I quickly hid the dagger and ran out of the attic. I continued my efforts but was left unsatisfied in vain. One day one morning, I decided to end it all. I grabbed the dagger and whispered to myself, "I had to overcome my fear, if I was going to win". Ignoring all the voices begging me not to do this, I rushed into the living room with the dagger in my hand. "What is this? Grandfather," I questioned. He stopped with a smile on his face for a second before answering, "You finally found it, didn't you?"

That morning, my life changed for the worse. What I thought was the closure and ends to the horrible mystery was just the beginning of another story.
