Dear Cousin,

I hope you ~~are~~ are doing great! First of all, congrats on acing high school! Trust me it's a big milestone. I recently heard that you are planning to go travelling during the summer, therefore I decided to write this email to share my views regarding your plans.

- ✓ 1 Travelling is a great way to relax and refresh before university. If you go with friends or family you will even
- ✓ 1 make long-lasting memories that help in strengthening your relations. Furthermore, you will experience new cultures and
- ✓ 1 gain knowledge about local ~~traditions~~ traditions - not to mention the amazing new dishes you will ~~be~~ be blessed with. Additionally, you can use your adventures to ~~learn~~ master basic life skills before university. Daily tasks such as financial management and communication are learnt through past ~~endeavours~~ endeavours and can't be taught well in classrooms.

✓ 2 However, travelling can be expensive. Everything

Question Part

from transport all the way to accommodation will cost you extra. Instead, P you could invest these funds in ~~the~~ future studies and helping the needy around you. P There ~~are~~ is ~~not~~ a plethora P of activities that are much more useful for university. ✓ 2 You could gain work experience during your vacations as well. ~~Since~~ ~~jobs~~ ~~employ~~ ~~employment~~ Employment can also teach you these basic skills; P you can ~~get~~ ~~to know many~~ make useful contacts and new friends. P ~~Finance is key~~ Travelling can be done when you are ✓ 2 older and much more independent. L5

In my view, it would be a childish V decision ~~to~~ to waste your golden time only in travelling, yet I would ~~sy~~ suggest you go for a week-long tour to relax and unwind before life takes V over again. EVAL Try getting a job for some time and focus on ~~your~~ ~~&~~ further studies after your tour. P ~~When~~ ~~is~~ L5

Four to five years from now, P when you are done with university, P you will thank me for this advice and then we can plan a month or two for travelling together with our families. P EVAL L5

I hope you get my point of view, and take it as ~~an~~ a polite suggestion. L5
Wishing you all the best in whatever

Question Part

With love,

Narrative:

"Ugh. Portugal was a much needed break," I ~~said~~ <sup>exclaimed</sup> as I got into the plane seat next to my father.

We had planned this trip months in advance and all ~~has~~ had turned out perfect... until now.

As we ~~got~~ jumped off the airliner and collected our bags from the conveyer belt, I had a weird feeling about the upcoming day. Though, I couldn't place a pin on what it was, I knew something was off. Anyways, I shrugged it off and tried the best to enjoy the countryside as my driver drove us to our estatey mansion.

I was propped on the couch drinking the coffee my ~~butler~~ <sup>butter</sup> had brewed for me minutes ago, when I noticed one of the maids dragging my suitcase towards the staircase.

"Odd, I must have missed the damage while grabbing it off the belt," I thought to myself when I got view of the fourth tire that was ~~moving~~ <sup>nervously</sup> shaking instead of rolling in a single direction.

Question Part

~~After comple~~

Later, P after completing the new episode of my favorite serial killer TV series, P I went into my room upstairs to find the two bags ~~that~~ I carried with me on the trip ~~on ~~laid~~ neatly on~~ the laid P neatly on the bed with fresh bed sheets that smelled like roses and a pair of pyjamas that were warm and ironed. P

L5

F At first, I opened my backpack to take out the essential V stuff and got ready for bed, ~~then~~ but then I changed my mind, ~~so~~ deciding to ~~so~~ unpack my luggage as well. P

L5

F I fiddled V with the lock for ~~an~~ unnecessary ten minutes, before accepting V defeat and realizing it ~~wasn't~~ wasn't ~~going to~~ going to open. P Perplexed, P I asked my father if he ~~had~~ had changed the combination. P

L5

F "Just when I thought my child was maturing he forgets his lock V combination and tries blaming his unsuspecting dad for it," he replied savagely. P

F Just then, I matched the dots together and the realization V hit me like a truck, the damaged wheel, the odd feeling and a different lock combination... P

Question Part

How could I have missed it! This was not even my bag. It was just a doppelganger ~~a bag~~ that was pretending to be mine!

"Aghh. How stupid can one be!" I cried sitting on the edge of my bed.

The next morning I ~~at~~ called the representatives of the airline I had travelled with and ~~asked for any missing bags reported the~~ inquired about any missing luggage reported the day before.

"Nope. Just a red bag that has not been <sup>claimed</sup> ~~claimed~~ by anyone yet," ~~came~~ a non-chalant voice ~~replied~~ through the speakers in my phone.

"Wow that's weird, first no one reports it missing and now I find out mine is waiting in the airport for me to collect..." I thought to myself.

Finally, I decided to ask my butler to break the lock open and so he did ~~but~~ but I wish he hadn't...

~~"AHHH!! Master there's guns in here!"~~
 "AHH!! Master there's a bomb in here!"
 That was the last <sup>voice</sup> ~~thing~~ I heard...
